President Cleveland has returned to Buzzard's Bay, Gray Gables, where his family has been spending the summer. His favorite recreation is fishing. No doubt he is "tired." Nobody will wish to disturb his tranquility.

"The billion dollar Congress" was one of the cries by which the Democrats got into power in 1892. But their appropriations have already exceeded those of the "Reed" Congress for the same time by more than $22,000,000, exclusive of what was necessary to meet deficiencies, and Mr. Cannon of Illinois, ex-chairman of the Committee on Appropriations, says that when the regular appropriations are made next winter, and the deficiencies added, the total appropriations of the 53d Congress will aggregate $1,050,000,000, against $988,417,83 for the "Reed" Congress, unless further cuts are made in the pension payments. But the people needed an object lesson and they are getting it.

Abraham Lincoln's first speech on the tariff question was short and to the point. He said he did not pretend to be learned in political economy, but he thought that he knew enough to know that "when an American paid twenty dollars for steel to an English manufacturer America had the steel and England had the twenty dollars. But when he paid twenty dollars for steel to an American manufacturer America had both the steel and the twenty dollars." That was the substance of the tariff question as viewed it.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

MAKE THE BEST OF IT.

The tariff bill, such as it is, has gone to force, except such parts as become in operation in Jan., 1895, and whether we like it or lump it, it must be the law of the land till such time as there shall be a change in the administration. President Cleveland, while not satisfied with this bill, is so wedded to it that he will not change for the better. He is pledged farther toward free trade, and if Congress is in such mood as to assist him, a further effort will be made during the last session of this present Congress to do still further harm. At March, 1895, the new Congress will assemble, but whatever its character, it can no more than hold its ground where they are. Cleveland will permit nothing in protective duties to be enacted into law. Hence the most that can be done is to forward making the best of the situation. Some branches of business will be injured or destroyed, others will feel the effects less. The lumber manufacturers in New England will find it difficult to do business, while the farmer may expect higher prices for his produce, owing to the heavy cut on agricultural products. He will suffer that the Canadian will prosper. Such is the unpleasant result. It is probable that wages will be cut all around from the necessity of the case. Manufacturers will run their mills unless there is a chance of profit; farmers will not help or cut prices if they cannot afford to pay present wages. The fact is from any standpoint, the effect is a blue one. But the Yankees will not die if he can help it, and they will try somehow to live if the circumstances are adverse. He will come some untoward circumstances and live, if he has half a chance. It may require extra labor part of all, an economy that has not been practiced in these latter years, but all business will go on and men will rise and set under the order of things.

Setting the record breaking of the week was the work of J. P. Bliss, who made a mile on his wheel in 1:52 of Robert J., the pacing horse made a mile in 2:02½.

THE STATE ELECTIONS.

Almost complete returns show that the republicans have carried the State by more than 27,000 majority and a plurality, Woodbury over Smith, of more than 28,000. This is the largest majority ever known in the state, except, possibly, at an election or two in war times. The results show that while the republicans failed to cast anywhere near their full vote the democrats utterly failed to come up, many towns not casting half as many as at former elections.

Every state officer is republican, every senator, and every representative in the legislature except from six to nine representatives is a republican. Every city and large town sends a republican. The result is overwhelming and practically unanimous. The populists cast no figure to amount to anything, perhaps they have 600 votes, while the prohibition vote is still smaller. The campaign has been an unusually quiet one; there have been no rallies, no campaign speeches, no extraordinary efforts made to increase the majority.

The result is from causes that the democratic administration is responsible for. Republicans have looked with dread and alarm upon the efforts being made to do harm to the interests of New England. While democrats, reluctant to leave the old party, have yielded to their better judgments and have changed their votes or quietly stayed at home. Their disapproval is the same in any event. The verdict of the quiet, intelligent voters of this state is an index of the feeling of the people like situated all over the country and it will have great influence on the minds of voters everywhere.

Republicans, while they exult over the result in this state, must remember that, so far as the affairs of this state are concerned, the responsibility all rests upon them, and it behooves them to so administer affairs as to commend their acts to the people and to prove themselves worthy of the trusts imposed.
